Proceedings of the Forty-Sixth Congress.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 6. The morning hour was consumed in the introduction and reference of bills. The senate amendments to the bill providing for certain expenses of the present session were concurred in.

Mr. Knott reported back without amendments the bill introduced yesterday to prohibit military interference at elections. Mr. Robeson offered a substitute making it unlawful to bring or employ at any place where a general or special election is being held in any state any part of the army or navy unless such employment shall be necessary to carry out the provisions of the constitution or overcome forcible obstructions to the execution of laws made in pursuance thereof and making any violation of this act a penal offence. The substitute is entitled "a bill to further protect the freedom of elections." Mr. Robeson's substitute was defeated; yeas 93, nays 121.

The bill reported by Mr. Knott was passed; yeas 124, nays 90—a strict party vote, all the greenbackers voting in the affirmative with the democrats.

By Mr. Newberry. Resolution of the Michigan legislature asking the U. S. congress and Canadian parliament to authorize the building of a bridge across the Detroit river.

By Mr. Cannon. For the admission of Utah as a state.

By Mr. Springer. Authorizing the payment of a portion of the Virginius indemnity fund to the mother of Gen. J. C. Ryan.

By Mr. Cox (N. Y.) Joint resolution relating to slaves in Cuba. The following is the text of the resolution. Whereas, The government of the United States to effect an end to the late rebellion in Cuba on a basis of the abolition of slavery, and whereas it was proclaimed that the existence of the Cuban rebellion was the reason why the Spanish government could not attempt to force the abolition of slavery and other reforms, and whereas it is affirmed that peace reigns in Spain and her colonies; and whereas a protest against the continuance of slavery in Cuba is justifiable on humanitarian grounds by precedents and principles of international law; therefore, Resolved that the president be requested to insist on the emancipation of slaves in Cuba, and to take such measures in co-operation with other governments, if possible, as will most speedily and humanely effect so civilized an object.

SENATE.

Senator McDonald reported from the committee on judiciary, with amendments, the bill introduced yesterday by Senator Eaton making it unlawful to use any part of the army and navy at the polls; etc. He gave notice that he would call it up to-morrow. The judiciary committee has added two amendments. The first provides that the bills against employing or bringing troops at the polls shall not apply to the use of military force when necessary to protect the state against invasion. The other amendment inserts the words, "When the legislature cannot be convened," after the clause which exempts from prohibition of employment of the army or navy to enforce the fourth section of article 4 of the constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof, on application of the legislature or executive of a state.

Senator Beck reported from the committee on appropriations, with amendments, the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill and gave notice that he would call it up at an early day. The principal amendments made by the committee on appropriations are those which were agreed upon by the committee yesterday, including the omission of the house clause directing the $10,000,000 reserve to be paid in arrears of pensions.

The resolution authorizing the taking of testimony in relation to the claim of Spofford to the seat of Kellogg was considered.

Senator Hoar offered a substitute declaring the senate had already settled the case on its merits by declaring that Kellogg was entitled to the seat.

Senator Cameron (Wis.) argued that the question was decided in Oct. '77 in favor of Kellogg and against Spofford, and the senate at that time declared the proceedings to be final and conclusive.

The chairman of the committee, Senator Saulsbury, had never known of a court taking testimony in order to ascertain whether a case was finally adjusted.

The morning hour having expired Senator Saulsbury hoped the consideration of the resolution would be continued.

Senator Houston said, this being a privilege question it took its own course and proceeded to read from a former decision of the vice president as appliable to the question before the senate, when he was interrupted by Senator Conkling, who demanded the reading of the fortieth rule, and added: We had better preserve some show of system."

Senator Houston—I am obliged to the senator for wishing to preserve some show of system.

The Chair (Wither—temporarily presiding) ruled that Conkling's point was not taken.

Senator Conkling appealed from the decision, and the debate continued for some time, and was more than ordinarily animated.

Senator Hill move that the appeal be laid on the table, which was agreed to.

Senator Cameron then resumed his argument, citing various contested cases to show that the Kellogg case had been decided upon similar principles.

Senator Conkling said nothing could be more inadmissable than the plea of Spofford to overthrow the prior adjudication.

Senator Saulsbury remarked that he did intend to express an opinion as to whether the present question was finally adjudicated or not, but all the committee desired was authority to investigate the entire question, so that by having testimony before the senate, it would be enabled to act intelligently.

Senator Carpenter regarding this as an important question and as several senators who desired to be heard were absent, moved the senate adjourn. The question was decided in the negative by a party vote—yeas 21, nays 31.

Senator Hoar said no senator on the democratic side had stated the grounds on which they sustained the Conkling resolution. The principle to which they sought to commit the senate was that whenever a party changed to a majority in the senate, it was competent to review and reverse the former judgment of the body and unseat a senator. The doctrine would and should surprise and alarm the American people.

TOPEKA, KAS., May 6. The state central committee met to-day and decided to organize and become incorporated under the state law. This is done to give stability and responsibility to the organization. The charter states the purposes of the organization as follows: The purposes for which this corporation is formed are to relieve as far as possible the wants and necessities of destitute freedmen, refugees and immigrants coming into this state; to provide necessary food, shelter and clothing for them when unable to provide for themselves, to succor the aged, the feeble and the sick, to aid and assist them in procuring work and finding homes either in families or where they wish to locate on government or other lands and to do and perform such other acts of charity and benevolence as the necessities of such freedmen refugees and immigrants may require. The board of directors consist of thirteen persons headed by the governor and state officers, Chief Justice Horton and U. S. Judge Foster.

An Important Convention.

VICKSBURG, MISS., May 6—There was a marked increase in the increase in the attendance of the Mississippi Valley labor convention which reassembled this morning at 10 o'clock in pursuance to adjournment yesterday evening. The first business claiming the attention of this convention was the report of the committee on resolutions, which through its chairman, W. L. Nugent, submitted the following:

MR. PRESIDENT, Your committee on resolutions beg leave respectfully to report that they have inquired into the causes which have given rise to the recent exodus of our colored population as far as possible within the limited time allowed, and while these causes are difficult to ascertain, owing to exceptional cases of all kinds brought to their attention, they believe the following to include those which may be considered proximate: The low price of cotton and partial failure of the crop in the past year; irrational system of planting adopted in some sections whereby labor was deprived of intelligence to direct it and the presence of economy to make it profitable; vicious system of credit whereby laws permitting laborers and tenants to mortgage crops before they were grown or even planted; apprehension on the part of many colored people produced by insidious reports circulated among them that their civil and political rights are endangered or are likely to be; hurtful and false rumors diligently discriminated, that by emigration to Kansas the colored people would obtain lands, mules and money from the government without cost to themselves and become independent farmers. Many retail country storekeepers engaged in the business of selling whisky to laborers and tenants whereby their morals have been corrupted, their labors rendered inefficient, and pleasant relations between them and their landlords or employers destroyed. It is a matter of astonishment to your committee that the colored people could be induced to credit the idle stories circulated of a promised land where their wants would be supplied and their independence secured without exertion on their part. It is one of the factors in the movement, and which we cannot now forecast. There are in the state of Mississippi alone 550,000,000 acres of land belonging to the United States now subject to homestead entries. Any thrifty colored man in the South can pre-empt 160 acres of this land at the moderate cost of about $18. Land in Kansas cannot be acquired for less. In no part of the civilized world can unskilled labor secure a larger return by honest toil than among us; but idleness, accompanied by extravagance, produces suffering and want here as elsewhere. Your committee believe that the legislation of our state should be shaped so as to foster habits of industry among the colored people, elevate the standard of their social morals, improve and preserve our common school system. Divers views have been expressed by parties equally desirous of reaching the same conclusions, viz: To ascertain their grievances, and apply, as far as can be done by us, the proper redress. If the single purpose of all was accomplished this result, without the influences which our past experiences have engendered to effect it, might be done, but it could only be done with a full knowledge of all the facts and errors that have been committed by whites and blacks alike, as each in turn have controlled the government of the states here represented. The resolutions are as follows:

Resolved, That the interests of planters, laborers, landlords and tenants are identical; that they must prosper or suffer together; that it is the duty of the planters and landlords of the states here represented to devise and adopt some contract system with their laborers and tenants by which both parties will receive the full benefit of their labor governed by intelligence and economy.

Resolved, That this convention does affirm that the colored race has been placed by the constitution of the United States and the states here represented and the laws thereof on a plane of an absolute legal equality with the white race, and does declare that the colored race shall be accorded the practical enjoyment of all the rights, civil and political, guaranteed by said constitution and laws.

Resolved, That to this end the members of this convention pledge themselves to use whatever power and influence they possess to protect the colored race against all dangers in respect to the fair expression of their will at the polls—which they apprehend may result from fraud, intimidation or bulldozing on the part of whites; and as there can be no liberty or action without freedom of thought they demand that all elections shall be fair, free; and that no repressive measures shall be employed by the colored people to deprive their own race in part of the fullest freedom in the exercise of the highest right of citizenship.

Resolved, That the unrestricted credit system prevailing the states here represented, based upon liens and mortgages on the stock or crop to be grown in the future, followed by short crops, has provoked distrust, created unrest and disturbed their entire laboring population. All laws authorizing liens on crops for advances constituted of articles other than those of prime necessity at moderate profits, whether such advances are made by landlord, planter or merchant, should be discountenanced and repealed.

Resolved, that this convention call upon the colored people here present to contradict the false reports circulated among and impressed upon the more ignorant and credulous, to instruct them that no lands, mules or money await them in Kansas or elsewhere without labor or price; and report to the civil authorities all persons engaged in disseminating such reports.

Resolved, That it is the constitutional right of the colored people to emigrate when and please to whatever state they may select for their residence, but this convention urges them to proceed in their movements towards emigration as reasonable humans, providing in advance by economy and effective labor means for transportation and settlement, sustaining their reputation for fair dealing by preserving intact until the completion of the contracts for labor which they have already made. If when they have done this they still desire to leave, all obstacles of their departure will be removed, all practicable assistance will be afforded to them.

JOB WORK.
Facilities for Plain and Fancy Job Printing equal to those of any establishment west of the Missouri river.

This seems to be a good year for Americans abroad. Hanlon's victory of Monday, and Parole's repeated victories fully offset Rowell's defeat, of the champion American walker.

In congress the other day Mr. Horr of Michigan put the needs of the country in the following forcible style: "What the country needs and what the south needs is not more greenbacks. I am not a sectional man, but a good feeling man, and I say that what you want down there is to go to work. You want to raise in Mississippi more corn and more cotton and less cussedness. You want more hogs and less humbug. You must raise horses and hogs more and hell less."

The Inter-Ocean says Judge Axford has prepared an interesting speech on the veto power full of interesting statistics. The following is a summary of the veto messages sent to congress by all the presidents:

Washington	2	Pierce	9
Madison	6	Buchanan	7
Monroe	1	Lincoln	2
Jackson	5	Johnson	17
Tyler	7	Grant	25
Polk	3	Hayes	4

Washington's first veto was an army appropriation bill which mustered two regiments of dragoons out of the service.

Since the death of General Dix, it has been stated that President Lincoln requested him to run as Vice President in 1864. In reply to this Colonel Alexander McClure in the Philadelphia Times gives the following interesting reminiscence: "The writer hereof was a delegate at large from Pennsylvania to the convention that renominated Mr. Lincoln in 1864, and he supported Andrew Johnson for vice president because personally requested to do so by Mr. Lincoln a few days before the nomination was made, and the only reason which Mr. Lincoln regarded as justifying his interference with the selection of his associate was his earnest desire to avoid a sectional ticket by taking the vice president from the South. Mr. Lincoln earnestly wished to relieve his party and the administration from the imputation of sectionalism, and he regarded the nomination of Mr. Johnson as most important because he was a southern loyalist."

The opinions of public men regarding General Grant's re-nomination are various. His intimate friends like Ex-Secretary Borie are anxious that he should not run. Sharp politicians like Wm. E. Chandler assert that he cannot be nominated, while men who are not politicians like Rev. Joseph Cook think, "Most undoubtedly Grant will be the republican convention's choice for the next president, and Grant will be needed. If things go on developing in Washington as they have been for some time no other arm than the stalwart, trained and steeled arm of a soldier and a man who is feared would be at home in the presidential chair. Remember that I do not so much anticipate an attack with arms to break up the Union and plunge the country again into bloodshed, as I do the attacks that will be made upon the country's laws and her treasury. If Grant is not nominated, the honor had better fall either upon General William T. Sherman or John Sherman, secretary of the treasury."

The Okolona States, now famous as an exponent of the extreme, bourbon sentiment, gives this programme for the revolutionists in Congress: "The popular tide is turning, and hereafter the democratic Jeffersonian democratic party will rule the republic. The histories will be written, the monuments will be built, and the country will be impressed and educated by the states-rights school of people; and we must see to it that Lincoln and his demagogue cabinet and his hireling military chiefs shall no longer occupy the places of honor to which they have been assigned by their fellow-traitors. The next thing to reach for is a fair, square southern representation in the United States army. We want to see a man like Jo. Johnston in command of the soldiers and forts of this country. We join the Charleston (S. C.) News in remarking that 'we must have all our rights or none. A half loaf is not enough.' The illustrious Jefferson Davis, the knightly Robert Lee, the chivalrous Albert Sidney Johnston, and men of their heroic mould, are the representatives of all that is best and purest and most progressive in this republic. To their honor must the marble pillars spring skyward. Their pictures must ornament the capitol halls as they ornament the homes of their masterful peoplehood."

Secretary Sherman spoke out his mind in his speech at Monday night. His speech indicates that his visit had some political significance. Rumors are again rife that [illegible] for Governor of Ohio this fall. Some may think it is a step down from his high position as secretary of the treasury, but it should be remembered it is also a better stepping stone to the presidency. In two years his term of office as secretary will have expired. He has already funded all the debt that can be funded before the expiration of his term of office. He has successfully accomplished the resumption of specie payment. All the glory he can win for himself out of this high office, he has won. It is not unnatural therefore that so shrewd a politician should be willing to take a lower office, provided he can further his ambitious plans. He evidently has a laudible ambition to be president. If he carries Ohio this fall it may secure his nomination, as he has great strength in New York and New England. If he should be elected governor of Ohio and not receive the presidency, he will be likely to be elected to the U. S. senate, as the successor of Senator Thurman, an honor he would undoubtedly aspire to.

WATER WORKS—STREETS AND DITCHES.

It appears from the late action in the city council that there is some difference of opinion in regard to the most desirable and economical method of superintendence of the water works, streets and ditches. It appears as if some of the aldermen do not know their minds from one meeting to another on the point, or else possibly there may be some personal feeling which ought most certainly never to be permitted to appear in anything which has simply reference to the welfare or good government of the city. What the citizens want is a careful oversight of our water works, streets and ditches, always keeping in mind true economy, which is very far from a certain kind of economy, which may be called niggardly and which usually proves to be extravagance in the end.

At one of the first meetings of the council a resolution was passed uniting the two offices of superintendent of streets and ditches and the water-works, and Matt France was appointed general superintendent. This movement certainly appeared to be in the interest of economy and seemed to commend itself to the people of the city generally. More than this, the city at the same time secured the services of the one man who is better acquainted with the whole scheme of the water works than any other in the city, and to whom more than any other man in the city is due the fact that they are now in operation and that every family has the privilege and enjoyment of as good water as the world affords at its door. This gentleman is also well known to have been one of the most careful and economical mayors we ever had. His record as county commissioner also bears the same impress of economy and care. While all this is true beyond peradventure, he is at the same time mayor of the city, and can in fulfilling his duties as mayor very easily work in his labor as general superintendent, without additional expense to the city. A movement now seems to be started in the council to divide this office of superintendent which has so lately been united and to make two superintendents. Of course if there are two such officers they must be paid, and naturally it will cost more to pay two men than one. It is possible that the superintendent of streets and ditches might do some of the work with his own hands; but that is not possible with any one who is fit to be the superintendent of the water works. In either case we do not think it is desirable, and besides the salary proposed to be paid to the general superintendent is no more than any other man fit to be superintendent of the water works ought to receive. As we have remarked above, niggardly economy usually proves to be in the end great extravagance. Very possible were this office to fall into the hands of any other than the present incumbent it might be advisable to divide it, but as long as the city can at the same time secure the services of this gentleman in all these capacities who is noted for his care and economy we do not believe that any change such as proposed will meet with general favor.

HOT SPRINGS,

PROPRIETORS,
REV. JOSEPH ADAMS, MRS. J. A. D. ADAMS,
Homœopathic Physician, and MR. G. K. HARTENSTEIN, Attorney at Law,

The Springs are situated at the mouth of Cottonwood Canon, in a most beautiful country, surrounded by scenery of the most gorgeous description, being in the very heart of Saguache range—Mount Yale lying to the north, and Mount Princeton to the south. The crystal waters of the Cottonwood river (abundant with trout) come dashing and sparkling past the door of the Sanitarium, from its fountain head, the eternal beds of snow which cap the hoary old mountains.

The following analyses, connected with six years' experience, warrant us in saying that they are a specific for catarrh, sore eyes, rheumatism, lead poisons, and all scrofulous affections:

...able figures in the country, as many buyers have learned from the severe experience of the past two years, that it will not do to pay excited prices as has too often been done heretofore. If wool is brought in the county with judgment we think the indications are favorable for a prosperous business for shippers. In California and Texas considerable wool is already shorn but there has not yet been enough sold to establish prices. Buyers seem cautious. A Curious Discovery.

The Santa Fe New Mexican gives the following account of a singular find recently made near Santa Fe:

A specimen of the handiwork of the ancient Spanish miners inhabiting this Territory was brought to town from the Cerrillos mines a day or two since, and is now on exhibition at the office of Gen. Atkinson. It is a casting from what seems to be pure silver, and is taking a front view, in the shape of a crown. At the base it is 2½ inches thick, at the top 2 inches, and at the sides 1½ inches. Its greatest width is 6¼ inches and from the top to the bottom 6 inches. If pure silver, its intrinsic value is about $150, but there is supposed to be some gold in it, which, of course, would add to its value. This remarkable ingot was discovered under a boulder about half a mile to the southeast of the celebrated Turquoise mine, in the midst of the new discoveries. It must have lain there at the least since 1680, as no working in these mines was done by the Spaniards after the uprising of the Indians during that year. It is well known that royalties were required of the miners by the old kings of Spain, and this may have been cast to be used in payment of his demand, but on account of its peculiar form it is more likely that it was intended as a present to the king. Whatever may be the true solution of this question, it certainly is one of the most interesting curiosities ever found in this region of country.

Is it a Junk, or a Joax?

The Visalia Delta tells the following veracious yarn:

A report comes from the Sierra Nevada mountains of the discovery of the timbers of a stranded vessel resembling those of a Chinese junk, high up in the mountains between Mineral King and the head waters of King's river. The sound portions of the timbers resemble camphor wood, and it is said still retains a faint smell. The fastenings are of copper, the riggings, &c., are of course all gone. A number of bones, supposed to be human, were also found in the vicinity, and upon the adjacent slopes there is abundant evidence of the previous occupation of the waters in the shape of shells, as well as the occasional finding of petrified fish. That this valley has at one time been an inland sea is admitted by geologists, but that these waters were navigated by Celestial seamen one or two thousand years ago has never been claimed even by the Chinese themselves. But the same people do claim to have been the original discoverers of this country, and this find gives color to the claim. It has also been claimed by them that vessels of theirs have been wrecked on this coast, and that portions of the crew have returned to China, but that the wreck itself should be located and that this location should prove to be in Tulare county, is surely an interesting fact, inviting the inspection of the curious and the solution of the scientific.

We are glad to learn that the sound portions of the timbers resemble camphor wood, and that there is a faint smell about this junk. It occurs to us there is a faint smell about the whole story, but if it is true it is worth printing as a remarkable fact; if it is false it is worth printing as a remarkable lie.

Proceedings of the Forty-Sixth Congress.

HOUSE.

WASHINGTON, May 7. The eight hour law went over on the expiration of the morning hour and the bill relating to coinage and coin and bullion certificates were taken up and Mr. Claflin spoke in opposition. As to the allegation that the demonetization of silver had been a trick Mr. Claflin declared that the act had been considered and printed in two congresses and had the assent even of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, (Mr. Kelley.)

Mr. Kelley protested that he never assented to it and explained that the remarks attributed to him were made in the discussion of yesterday. The pending bill he characterized as one of the most extraordinary ever introduced. Its effects would be to launch the country again on the sea of irredeemable currency.

Mr. Vance spoke in favor of the bill.

Mr. Kiefer asked Vance whether he with a majority of the democrats in the house, had not voted to deprive the trade dollar of its legal tender quality.

Mr. Vance said he did not recollect, but he was free to admit that he had not given under the exultant rates of interest being charged by national banks, indicating 18 per cent. as not an unusual rate, and mentioned 5 per cent. a month as rates charged by lenders in some parts of North Carolina. This was one of the effects of the financial legislation of congress which smacked of that which distinguished the rotten dynasties of European countries. There was much more danger of the government being destroyed by class legislation than there was of its being starved to death. Adjourned.

SENATE.

After some discussion Senator Edmunds submitted an amendment to the pending resolution, "Only so far as it relates to any charge of personal misconduct on the part of Senator Kellogg that may render him liable to expulsion or censure." He wished to confine investigation to this point because the question of Kellogg's right to his seat had already been determined on its merits. The amendment was rejected; yeas 20, nays 27.

Senator Conkling submitted an amendment the pending resolution providing that this quiry shall be confined to matters alleged in e memorial of Spofford to be new and differ- ent from those covered by the previous inquiry. Disagreed, yeas 20, nays 25.

Senator Hoar submitted an amendment to the resolution as follows, "And said committee are further instructed to inquire and report whether bribery or other corrupt or unlawful measures were used to secure the alleged election of Spofford, the memorialist."

Senator Saulsbury said he was instructed by the committee to accept the amendment.

Senator Edmunds offered an amendment recognizing the validity and finality of the decision which secured Senator Kellogg his seat. This was disagreed to; yeas 20, nays 27.

Senator Logan offered an amendment empowering and directing the committee further to make inquiry whether any unlawful or corrupt means were used to disorganize the legislative body that elected Kellogg, so that it might elect Spofford, the memorialist.

Senator Conkling briefly supported the amendment.

Senator Logan in advocating his amendment, said that inasmuch as the democratic caucus had overlooked the matter, and had no design to cover up a fraud, he thought there might be a complete examination in order to see whether bribery or corruption had been used by the democrats to break up the legislature that elected Kellogg, to enable them to organize one to elect Spofford, the memorialist.

Senator Logan's amendment was disagreed to; yeas 19, nays 28. The senate also rejected, yeas 16, nays 26, Senator Hoar's substitute offered on the previous day, declaring that the senate in October '77, decided the question on its merits and seated Kellogg. The senate then passed a resolution of the committee on privileges and elections authorizing them to take testimony in the memorial of Spofford contesting the seat of Senator Kellogg, with the amendment of Senator Hoar as mentioned in the former part of the proceedings, and which had been accepted by the committee to day. The division vote on the adoption of the resolution was, yeas 26, nays 17. All the votes taken to-day were of a strict party character.

Senator Eaton moved that the senate take from the table the house bill to prevent military interference in elections.

Senator Edmunds preferred the senate should consider the business for which the extra session was called. The bill proposed to be taken up was in effect a declaration that there should be no appropriation unless there was satisfactory legislation on some other subject. The senate by a party vote, yeas 27, nays 15, took up the house bill to prohibit military interference at the polls. Senator Blaine submitted the following amendment: Any person who shall carry concealed deadly weapons at any place or within a mile of any place where a general or special election for representatives [illegible]
